

Is your child on Medicaid? Does your child have a long-term disability? Your child could qualify for supplemental security income.

*Partners For Kids and Centauri Health Solutions can help you apply.

If you are struggling to pay rent or buy food, there may be help available.

We have partnered with Centauri Health Solutions to help you apply for Supplemental Security Income (SSI).

What Is SSI?

SSI is an assistance program for people who have disabilities and who may face financial challenges. It gives money to help pay for food, rent and clothes.

You must apply for SSI. SSI payments come from the federal government. People who qualify receive one payment every month. If you get SSI, you may also be able to get Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP) benefits and housing help.

2023 SSI rates:

- Up to $914 per month for an eligible person

Can My Child Get SSI?

If you are applying for your child, to get benefits, your child must:

- Have a medical, physical or mental condition that limits what they can do.
- Have an impairment from a medical condition that lasts at least 12 months or is considered life-limiting. Any severe disability can qualify, but some examples are:
 - Cystic fibrosis
 - Autism
 - Low birth weight
 - Blindness
 - Learning disabilities
 - Emotional disorders
 - Sickle cell disease
